The striking out of this paragraph demonstrates the apparent total lack of understanding of the situation this planet is in. Perhaps this is only a low rung on the ladder, but it is part of protecting wildlife, preserving the environment, supporting biodiversity, and as you get to the top rung of the ladder you encounter the planet, which is suffering from the stupidity, lack of understanding, selfishness and greed of so many organisations, perhaps even DBC. It is time people realised that any "development", no matter how small, should have at its centre the aim of supporting and sustaining the natural world. If not, the demise of the human race may come a little earlier than some want.
